My experience has made me ready to take responsibility for every situation that life takes me through.

We all should together try to overcome the blood deficit by encouraging more and more people to go and voluntarily donate blood in hospitals and blood banks so that blood can be made available in emergency situations.

PLF is all about bringing the change. One major change that I have noticed in me happens to be that I have grown better as an individual.

I would like to request everyone to experience the feel of saving lives. It gives immense satisfaction.

Patient Party- Mr. Partha Ghosh

Every now and then we post pictures of donors to thank them for being a super hero and saving lives, but this time, it is little different. This time, Patient Party took his experience to Social Media. Mr. Partha Ghosh had his family member admitted at Fortis Hospital for the treatment of Cancer and required 3 units of Single Donor Platelets.

For the first donor, Mr. Dipak Simal, he posted:

"Your invaluable platelet-donation made me realize the value of humanity. I thank you very much on behalf of my family. God bless you".

For the second donor, Mr. Kiran, he wrote:

"Once again, the evidence is that people stand beside each other and extend their hands to support each other. Kiran, I thank you on behalf of my family. Your gift of this invaluable platelet will always be remembered".

For the third donor, Mr. Mayank Agarwal, he said-

"Today I witnessed a rare event. An unidentified stranger from young generation has come to save the life. He donated his invaluable platelets. Evidence that humanity is still alive today. People are for people."

Wedding Camp

25th Feb, 2020

Project Life Force redefined Blood Donation Camp as Celebration of Life.

As an extension to the celebration, a new initiative has been started where we encourage organisers to hold a Blood Donation Camp as one of the functions in wedding.

We congratulate and thank Rishi & Komal, and family for taking a step ahead and holding a Blood Donation Camp to celebrate life along with the union of two families.
